FOR THE ASSOCIATE COMMISSIONER,
EXAMINATIONS

Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The nonimmigrant visa petition was denied by the Director, Nebraska Service Center. The matter is now before the Associate Commissioner for Examinations on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a semi-professional rugby club.¹ The beneficiary is described as a professional rugby player.² The petitioner filed a Form I-129, Petition for a Nonimmigrant Worker, seeking classification of the beneficiary under section 101(a)(15)(P)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act) for a period of three years. The petitioner seeks to employ the beneficiary temporarily in the United States as a rugby player. The petitioner also sought a change of status for the beneficiary from a nonimmigrant visitor for pleasure (B-2) to a P-1 athlete. The application for change of status was denied by the director and that decision is not appealable under 8 C.F.R. 248.3(g).

The director denied the petition, finding that the record was insufficient to show that the petitioner would compete at an internationally recognized level and to show that the services to be performed by the beneficiary require an internationally recognized athlete. The director also determined that rugby does not qualify as a major league sport in the United States.

On appeal, counsel for the petitioner submitted a brief arguing that the director's decision was not in accordance with the appropriate regulations.

Under section 101(a)(15)(P)(i) of the Act, an alien having a foreign residence which he or she has no intention of abandoning may be authorized to come to the United States temporarily to perform services for an employer or sponsor. Section 214(c)(4)(A) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. 1184(c)(4)(A), provides that section 101(a)(15)(P)(i) of the Act applies to an alien who:

- (i) performs as an athlete, individually or as part of a group or team, at an internationally recognized level of performance, and
- (ii) seeks to enter the United States temporarily and solely for the purpose of performing as such an athlete with respect to a specific athletic competition.

¹ The petitioner is semi-professional in that it compensates at least one player.

² The term professional when applied to P-1 athletes means a person who derives his livelihood from athletic activity. The term professional athlete as defined at section 204(i)(2) of the Act and the term professional set forth at section 203(b)(3)(A)(ii) and 101(a)(32) of the Act are not applicable in the P-1 context.

8 C.F.R. 214.2(p)(1)(i) provides for P-1 classification of an alien:

General. Under section 101(a)(15)(P) of the Act, an alien having a residence in a foreign country which he or she has no intention of abandoning may be authorized to come to the United States temporarily to perform services for an employer or a sponsor. Under this nonimmigrant category, the alien may be classified under section 101(a)(15)(P)(i) of the Act as an alien who is coming to the United States to perform services as an internationally recognized athlete, individually or as part of a group or team...

8 C.F.R. 214.2(p)(1)(ii)(A) provides for P-1 classification of an alien:

(1) To perform at specific athletic competition as an athlete, individually or as part of a group or team, at an internationally recognized level or performance...

8 C.F.R. 214.2(p)(2)(ii) requires, in part, that a petition for an internationally recognized athlete include:

(A) The evidence specified in the specific section of this part for the classification;

(B) Copies of any written contracts between the petitioner and the alien beneficiary or, if there is no written contract, a summary of the terms of the oral agreement under which the alien(s) will be employed; and

(C) An explanation of the nature of the events or activities, the beginning and ending dates for the events and activities, and a copy of any itinerary for the events and activities.

8 C.F.R. 214.2(p)(3) states that:

Internationally recognized means having a high level of achievement in a field evidenced by a degree of skill and recognition substantially above that ordinarily encountered, to the extent that such achievement is renowned, leading, or well-known in more than one country.

8 C.F.R. 214.2(p)(4)(i)(A) provides, in pertinent part, that:

P-1 classification as an athlete in an individual capacity. A P-1 classification may be granted to an alien who is an internationally recognized athlete based on his or her own reputation and achievements as an individual. The alien must be coming to the United States to perform services which require an internationally recognized athlete.

8 C.F.R. 214.2(p)(4)(ii) sets forth the documentary requirements for P-1 athletes as:

(A) General. A P-1 athlete must have an internationally recognized reputation as an international athlete or he or she must be a member of a foreign team that is internationally recognized. The athlete or team must be coming to the United States to participate in an athletic competition which has a distinguished reputation and which requires participation of an athlete or athletic team that has an international reputation.

(B) Evidentiary requirements for an internationally recognized athlete or athletic team. A petition for an athletic team must be accompanied by evidence that the team as a unit has achieved international recognition in the sport. Each member of the team is accorded P-1 classification based on the international reputation of the team. A petition for an athlete who will compete individually or as a member of a U.S. team must be accompanied by evidence that the athlete has achieved international recognition in the sport based on his or her reputation. A petition for a P-1 athlete or athletic team shall include:

(1) A tendered contract with a major United States sports league or team, or a tendered contract in an individual sport commensurate with international recognition in that sport, if such contracts are normally executed in the sport, and

(2) Documentation of at least two of the following:

(i) Evidence of having participated to a significant extent in a prior season with a major United States sports league;

(ii) Evidence of having participated in international competition with a national team;

(iii) Evidence of having participated to a significant extent in a prior season for a U.S. college or university in intercollegiate competition;

(iv) A written statement from an official of a major U.S. sports league or an official of the governing body of the sport which details how the alien or team is internationally recognized;

(v) A written statement from a member of the sports media or a recognized expert in the sport which details how the alien or team is internationally recognized;

(vi) Evidence that the individual or team is ranked if the sport has international rankings; or

(vii) Evidence that the alien or team has received a significant honor or award in the sport.

8 C.F.R. 214.2(p)(7)(i) requires, in pertinent part:

(A) Consultation with an appropriate labor organization regarding the nature of the work to be done and the alien's qualifications is mandatory before a petition for P-1, P-2, or P-3 classification can be approved.

The issues in this matter are whether the petitioner is a major United States sports team and whether the beneficiary is coming to the United States to compete at an internationally recognized level.

The petitioner failed to establish that the beneficiary has a contract with a major United States sports league or team. The term major United States sports league or team is not defined in the Act or regulations, but the common usage of the term is a team or league of principal importance in professional sports.³ The term professional when applied to P-1 athletes means a person who derives his livelihood from the profession of athletics.⁴ In the instant case, the beneficiary would be paid a stipend of $500 per week plus a housing allowance.⁵ The record does not establish that all members of the petitioner's club are compensated or that they derive their livelihood from rugby. The record is silent as to whether or not the beneficiary would be the only member of the petitioner's club to receive compensation. The preponderance of the evidence on the record indicates that the team is an amateur club. The Eagles⁶ website describes all United States club players as amateur.

³ Webster's II New College Dictionary, 2nd edition, 2001.

⁴ As stated in footnote 2, the terms "professional athlete" and "professional" as defined elsewhere in the Act are not applicable in the P-1 context.

⁵ The initial petition indicated that the petitioner would pay the beneficiary $500 per month. In a response to a request for additional evidence, the petitioner attempted to amend the petition to state that the petitioner would pay the beneficiary $500 per week.

According to the record, rugby in the United States is governed by the United States of America Rugby Football Union (USA Rugby). USA Rugby oversees the national team (the Eagles) as well as more than 1,500 rugby clubs (men's, women's, collegiate and youth). The U.S. Men's Club rugby is divided into three divisions consisting of approximately 450 clubs. 200 clubs compete within Division I. The petitioning team is a Division I team. Division I teams compete for a National Championship. Although Division I teams have greater stature than a team in Division II or III, they do not have the highest ranking. The national team, the Eagles, is at the very top of the ranking in the United States and competes at an international level. The petitioner falls below the Eagles in ranking, and may not be considered as a team of principal importance in U.S. rugby.

In the instant case, the petitioner attempted to amend the petition in response to a request for additional evidence. Even if the petitioner compensated the beneficiary at the revised salary of $26,000, this is not an amount indicative of athletic competition at the highest professional level in the United States. The contracts of major league players in more popular sports in the United States offer salaries of up to several million dollars. Division I rugby players are, for the most part, offered no salary at all.

Other indicia of a major league team might include significant television contracts, a presence in major metropolitan markets, commercial sponsorships from athletic equipment companies, and teams comprised of internationally recognized players. This is not an exhaustive or exclusive list of indicia of a major league team. In any event, the petitioner failed to meet the threshold requirement that the team be a professional, rather than an amateur, team.

In the instant case, counsel for the petitioner indicated that the petitioner team competes in the Rugby Super League that has several agreements providing television coverage of Rugby Super League results and championship matches. The petitioner team or club does not have significant television contracts. Only if the petitioner club wins the Rugby Super League championship would it receive television coverage. The petitioner asserts that all of the Rugby Super League players are internationally recognized. Simply going on record without supporting documentary evidence is not sufficient for the purpose of meeting the burden of proof in these proceedings. Matter of Treasure Craft of California, 14 I&N Dec. 190 (Reg. Comm. 1972).

The evidence on the record indicates that rugby is at a developmental stage in this country. There are no professional rugby teams that compensate all of their players. USA Rugby has engaged the services of a former major league soccer commissioner to establish a professional rugby league in the United States to begin play in April 2003. See Paul Verdon, "Kiwi Connection to United States Professional Rugby Bid," The National Business Review (New Zealand), March 28, 2002, 2002 WL 10425873.

Finally, the evidence on the record indicates that the petitioner club is a minor league team. The petitioner provided the Service with a letter from the chief executive officer of Major League Rugby⁷ that states that the Division I teams (such as the petitioner club) serve as farm clubs or essentially minor league teams to the National Team. The petitioner provided the Service with another letter from the USA National Rugby Team's Director stating that clubs are "affiliated minor league teams to the U.S. National Team."

The next issue in this proceeding is whether the petitioner has established that the beneficiary will compete at an internationally recognized level. The petitioner failed to provide evidence such as news articles in foreign publications about the petitioner club's performance. There is no indication that the petitioner club competes in internationally recognized tournaments. The evidence shows that the petitioner club does not compete on an international level with foreign national teams. There is only one rugby team in the U.S. that competes against other international teams, and that is the U.S. national team, the Eagles. The record is insufficient to establish that the beneficiary is coming to the United States to perform at an internationally recognized level.

In review, the petitioner failed to overcome the director's objections.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
